

SIGNS THAT YOU'VE MADE THE RIGHT CAREER DECISION

Being a discerning individual is a crucial trait for making decisions in your career path. As your guide, we've prepared a checklist for you to assess if you're on track toward the right career path.

Your career matches your skills and interests.

You have the edge because your career aligns with your skills and interests. You're more inclined to excel, progress, and make meaningful contributions.

There's a strong desire for personal growth.

You view your challenges as catalyst for growth where your optimism doesn't make you unhinge in one mundane day.

You're confident.

You're given opportunities and resources to grow and that fulfillment boosts your confidence constantly.

Your values meet halfway with your career.

You easily build rapport with your colleagues, direct supervisors, and even your clients because you share the same vision, culture, and ethics with them.

You've got a capable and delightful team.

If your team contributes to both your personal and career growth and creates an enjoyable non-toxic environment, then you are in a right team.
